State-of-the-art aesthetic health hospital opens in East Brisbane

As of this week, Brisbane residents looking to enhance, reduce or restore their natural assets will have a new destination, with the opening of Renaissance Aesthetic Health Day Hospital and Clinic. The brainchild of renowned specialist plastic surgeon, Dr Scott Ingram, the former Form & Function Clinic has had a makeover of its own.

For over 15 years Dr Ingram and his team have been artfully fusing form and function; delivering aesthetic health therapies and procedures to empower their clients to be the best version of themselves. Renaissance brings to life Dr Ingram's passion for enabling a client's personal renaissance, providing new confidence and enhanced self-esteem.

"We're very excited to see the transformation of Form & Function Clinic into Renaissance Aesthetic Health," Dr Ingram said. "Our beautiful new facility offers the latest medical treatments and surgical procedures, but in an elegant environment with a level of personal service not previously available in Australia."

Centrally located on Wellington Road, East Brisbane, Renaissance is a new state-of-the-art licenced day hospital, purpose built to conduct therapeutic treatments and cosmetic and reconstructive procedures, with more complex reconstructive surgeries continuing at the Mater Private Hospital. It features two cutting-edge operating theatres, which form part of an ultra-modern client journey from a contemporary pre-op lounge, through to a three-stage recovery amenity.

Dr Ingram was one of the first Specialist Plastic Surgeons in Australia to implement the Vectra 3D Imaging System, and is one of only a few surgeons in Australia trained and accredited to perform Cellulaze, a revolutionary treatment for cellulite which has achieved outstanding results.

Renaissant offers a range of the latest, most technically advanced procedures and technologies available in today's market, with more than 12 non-surgical medical-grade specialist therapeutic treatments and over 16 cosmetic solutions. Reconstructive expertise focuses on three specific areas – hand and wrist repairs, breast reconstruction and skin cancer removal.
